

PART C – DECISION UNDER APPEAL

The decision under appeal is the Ministry of Social Development and Poverty Reduction's ("Ministry") reconsideration decision dated May 8, 2018 which found the appellant ineligible for disability assistance for the month of May, 2018 because her net income exceeded the amount of disability assistance determined for her family unit.

PART D – RELEVANT LEGISLATION

Employment and Assistance for Persons with Disabilities Regulation (EAPWDR) sections 1, 9; Schedule A, sections 1,2,4; Schedule B, sections 1, 6, 7, 9

PART E – SUMMARY OF FACTS

The ministry was not in attendance at the hearing. After confirming that the ministry was notified, the hearing proceeded under section 86(b) of the Employment and Assistance Regulation.

The information before the minister at reconsideration consisted of:

- A Monthly Report dated April 5, 2018, submitted by the appellant, showing Employment Insurance (EI) income of $6,480.
- An EI/MHSD Common Claimant Report.
- The appellant's Request for Reconsideration signed April 25, 2018.

The appellant submitted a Notice of Appeal to the Tribunal dated May 28, 2018, in which she stated that her EI payments were for medical purposes, and should be considered as just as serious and important as those for which statutory exemptions are provided under Schedule B of the EAPWDR (i.e. maternity, parental or benefits to care for a critically ill child); and that this payment is 12 months late, supposed to be paid out in 2017, not 2018.

The Panel accepted the appellant's statement as argument.

The appellant stated that she worked at 5 jobs in the past year. She applied for EI in February, 2017, but her employers were slow in submitting Records of Employment (ROE). After submitting ROI from 3 of the 5 employers and waiting almost a year, she was approved for disability assistance. The appellant stated that she is suffering from depression and anxiety with suicidal ideation and that accessing health services has been very difficult. She stated that she had to borrow money while she was waiting for her EI to be approved, and when she received the EI payment, she used the money to repay debt. The appellant argued that the EI payment is not income; it is for medical assistance and it should not be considered unearned income by the ministry.

PART F – REASONS FOR PANEL DECISION

The issue in this appeal is the reasonableness of the ministry decision which found that the appellant was not eligible for May, 2018 disability assistance was reasonably supported by the evidence, or was a reasonable application of the applicable legislation in the circumstances of the appellant.

(iv) remain liable to make the payments required by the settlement agreement.

Application of deductions and exemptions

9 (1) The deductions and exemptions in this Schedule apply only in the calendar month in which the income is actually received, despite any of the following:

(a) the date the income is payable;

(b) the period for which the income is payable;

(c) the date the income is reported to the minister;

(d) the date the minister receives notice of the income.

The appellant's position is that the money she received from EI is for medical assistance and should be considered as sickness benefits, not income. In addition, the appellant argued that the payment from EI was for 2017, not 2018.

The ministry's position, as stated in the Reconsideration Decision, is that the EI payment received by the appellant is unearned income as defined in section 1, EAPWDR and is not exempt from her disability assistance under any of the relevant sections of Schedule B of EAPWDR which list exemptions. The ministry argued that income is considered when it is received.

Panel Decision

The definition of “unearned income” in section 1, EAPWDR includes, without limitation, employment insurance. The exemptions from unearned income listed in Schedule B, EAPWDR, do not apply to this payment; therefore the Panel finds that the ministry reasonably determined that the EI payment received by the appellant is unearned income and must be deducted from her disability assistance in accordance with the provisions of section 9(2), EAPWDR. As the amount of the EI payment received by the appellant in April, 2018 exceeded the appellant’s disability assistance as calculated under Schedule A, the Panel finds that the ministry reasonably found the appellant ineligible for disability assistance for the month of May, 2018.

With respect to the appellant’s argument that the EI payment was for a period in 2017, the Panel notes that the payment to the appellant was received in April, 2018 and finds that the ministry reasonably applied the deduction from the appellant’s disability assistance in the calendar month in which it was received, in accordance with section 9 of Schedule B, EAPWDR. The appellant argued that the EI payment should be considered to be exempt as it is for medical purposes, however the Panel notes that the definition of unearned income in section 1, EAPWDR includes employment insurance without limitation and no exemption listed in section 1 of Schedule B, EAPWDR applies.

The Panel finds that the ministry reasonably determined that the appellant’s EI payment received in April, 2018 was unearned income that exceeded her disability assistance rate and that she was not eligible for disability assistance for the month of May, 2018. The Panel confirms the ministry decision.

The appellant is not successful on appeal.
